1. INTRODUCTION

Speaking is one hardly aspects to be mastered by students. This is hardly surprising when one considers everything that is involved when speaking: ideas, what to say, language, how to use grammar and vocabulary, pronunciation, as well as listening to and reacting to the person you are communicating with. It means that speaking skill is one of productive abilities that should be conquered by students to converse with others, according to Pollard (2008) in [1]. (Brown, 2001; Mufaidah, 2014), mentioned that oral communication competence or speaking skill is the target of English learning in elementary schools [1]. It means that speaking skill as an initial skill that leads young learners to develop interaction and speaking is the first step to students learn English language. Speaking skill is often reflected the most significant part of an EFL course [2]. The proficiency to converse in Foreign Language teaching is the most crucial skill as it is the fundamental for communication [2]. In short, one is imperfect if he does not attain capability in speaking when learning a language. Speaking is defined as the most usual technique to deliver idea to other, then the aptitude to converse effectively must be reserved seriously since it is a fundamental obligation in English education [2]. Burkart (1998 : 11), says that speaking is an activity which involves the areas of knowledge, they are the mechanism (pronunciation, grammar, and vocabulary); it is the use of the right words in the right order with the right pronunciation [2].

Teacher can use some methods to teach the students and it will help the students to learn speaking [1]. Teaching speaking is unlike teaching reading, listening, and writing. Formation pattern is needed as it is really a factual interaction and speaking is a productive competence then practicing is needed as many as possible.[2]. According to Kumari (2014), some techniques in teaching speaking which can be applied to develop speaking skills are dialogue, role-play, opinions/ideas, problems (group work), surveys and interviews, visual comprehension, dreams or ambitions, rhymes and tongue twisters, and songs [3]. Some even after years of English teaching, the learners do not reach the confidence of using English in and outside the class properly [4]. And in fact this is also encountered by the students of SMA Panca Bhakti, Pontianak when visited by the team of community services from STMIK Pontianak. The problems they found while speaking, students are having problems in using some practical English for daily conversation, of course because of lack of vocabulary, and some speaking aspects, also not confidence in speaking using target language. The success of teaching speaking should be determined by many factors such as the material and the strategy applied by the teacher. Drama is an alternative strategy to improve students competence in speaking. Drama technique can help students to learn and express themselves both through language spoken and language expression as well. Since the learners are more energetic in verbal interaction, drama is a particular action too to increase learning process more active, exciting, communicative and contextual [4]. Drama technique also refer to all those techniques which accompany a dramatic discourse to help a better understanding and better performance of the text. Body, mind, emotions and motivation to use their own personalities and experiences as resources for language production are included in Drama technique (Maley and Duff, 1978) in [4].

This seminar of community services leads to questions as follows :

1. How does Drama performance technique boost students speaking competence ?
2. How effective Drama performance in overcoming students speaking problems ?

2. LITERATURE REVIEW

McGregor, Tate and Robinson (1977) in Learning through Drama, stated that “Drama resolves around the process of behavior through interpersonal response”. It strengths students to cooperate because acting-out involves a “negotiation of meaning” [4]. The more essential factors that interact in the process of acquiring language and learning new conceptual information through drama is learning by doing. Maley and Duff (1978), drama could be reflected as an educational objective since it releases imagination and energy. Fernandez and Coil (1986) drama creates learning more authentic and significant as it inspires learners to practice their sensitivity and imagination [5]. Drama as educational instrument boosts the social, intellectual, and the linguistic growth of the child (Dougill, 1987) [5]. Next, drama increases motivation and provides the incentive to work hard (Mordecai, 1985; Scharengnivei, 1970). The activities using drama tend to be purposeful. The student sees the need to communicate and concentrate on how to go about a task since drama provides him with a meaningful context. Drama has a therapeutic effect. It may support in solving emotional and behavioral complications (Stern, 1980; Scharengnivei, 1970). Drama as a technique for unactive students spending energy, and to boost the shy and stubborn students to engage in learning [5]. Holden (1981) described drama as any kind of activity where learners are requested either to portray themselves or to portray someone else in an imaginary situation. She concentrated on the 'let's pretend' characteristic of drama where learners project themselves imaginatively into another atmosphere and the personality of another person [6].

In his studies Seungyeun Rew (2013) states that students are assisted in acquiring English expressions that used in English drama regardless of gender and proficiency as the conclusion. Then more positive aspects become apparent [6]. In his study Deri Sis Nanda says that drama encourages the learners to develop their creativity, strengthen their confidences, and improve the ability to cooperate with others. Also students have their own stage to express their thoughts and show their initiative [7].

Drama can be applied in teaching English L2 for a variety of purposes [5]:

1. Language is used in factual situations (Scharengnivei, 1970; Early and Tarlington, 1982; Mordecai, 1985). Drama reflects the language in existent or imagined situations in and out of the classroom. Language in the class that uses drama activities is explored, tried out and practiced in meaningful situations.
2. Drama activities can be portrayed as a means of strengthening of language learnt (Mordecai, 1985; Fernandez and Coll, 1986). It helps to lengthen maintain and reinforce vocabulary and sentence structure through role-play and communication games.
3. Drama increases verbal communication. As a outline of communication methodology, drama offers the opportunity for the student to use language meaningfully and aptly. Maley and Duff (1978) state that drama sets back some of the forgotten emotional content into language. Accuracy and meaning are more important than form or structure of the language. Drama can help rebuild the totality of the situation by reversing the learning process, beginning with meaning and moving towards language form. This creates language learning more significant and attempts to prepare the student for real-life situations.
4. Through drama performance learning second language more attractive, motivating, and significant (Mordecai, 1985).
5. The problem of mixed ability is reduced when drama activities are used. Students who are more fluent can take the main roles which require more oral communication, while the weaker students compensate for their lack of linguistic ability by paralinguistic communication e.g. body language and general acting ability (miming).
6. Earl Stevick (1980) defines language learning must attractive to the creative intuitive aspect of personality as well as the sensible and realistic part. Drama gives students opportunity to be actively involved. And it encompasses both student's whole personality and mental process. Effective learning takes place as the student involves himself in the tasks and is motivated to use the target language.
